Business Spotlight:

Henry's Fork Farmers Market

Henry's Fork Farmers Market began back in 2010 when farmer's markets were starting to become quite popular in the bigger cities. So a group of individuals got together and went to a class in Pocatello on how to begin your own farmer's market in your town. Learning to make sure they have a lot of agriculture based items and homemade items at the market, now led by a small board and faithful vendors, the Henry's Fork Farmers Market is onto their 3rd year in business. With different locations, organizers and vendors are excited about this season. Being well supported every year, Ashton's location has moved to the grassy area across from Trail's Inn and next door to Dr. Toenjes office. And this year instead of setting up in St. Anthony, vendors are going to try to sell their products up in Island Park by Mount Mayhem in Last Chance. Henry's Fork Farmer's Market will be in Ashton on the 1st and 3rd Thursdays, beginning this week! And on the 2nd and 4th Thursdays the Henry's Fork Farmers Market will be in Island Park. Some items one might find at the market are fresh raised eggs, homemade breads, homemade soap, nice blankets and afghans, yummy homemade candies, and fresh produce. This year the board is looking to add a new venue to the market called a "community table". So if you are lucky to grow a nice bountiful garden this summer and just can't eat it all, this might be the ticket for you! For more information on this idea or to become a vendor please call Beth Wright @ 206-5657 and she'll be glad to hook you up with what you need to know. So, if you have a chance this summer check out one of our newest members to the chamber: Henry's Fork Farmers Market, and you might find something that you will enjoy. For more information contact Cicely Kuehl @ 360-8954 or Beth Wright @ 206-5657. Come visit us on July 4th from 10-2 in Ashton!
