Fall River Electric Cooperative has initiated a fundraising effort to construct a small-scale distributed generation system at North Fremont High School. The installed system will consist of a wind turbine and solar panels similar to this photo. The system will include a real-time display, teacher training and classroom materials to help integrate into the school's curriculum.

Businesses and utilities nationwide are facing a changing energy landscape – including growing interest by consumers for renewable energy options. Fall River Electric intends to give students at North Fremont a head start toward understanding and using these technologies. Even though the city of Ashton and North Fremont High School are not served by Fall River Electric, the Cooperative is dedicated to educating our youth about a changing future and about the possibilities of renewable energy.

The total cost of the project is about $35,000. The Cooperative has secured a $10,000 grant plus is contributing an additional $15,000 to the project in an effort to help the school provide education that will benefit students for several decades.

A Crowdrise account has been established so that other businesses in and around the Ashton community as well as parents, alumni and other individuals may participate if they choose to do so. Visit www.crowdrise.com/FallRiverSolarforSchools to make your donation.

Information deadline for the Newsletter is due by 8 AM on the Saturday prior to the first and third Tuesday of the month. Please email anything you would like posted to info@ashtonidaho.com or leave a message at 652-3355.
